THE lives of the beloved trees in New York parks are guarded by a staff of tree "doctors." Trees that are victims to lighting, age and disease are treated.

M. Eugene Lauste, a Frenchman, is the inventor of one of the first motion picture machines. With his help, Thomas A. Edison developed his kine-scope. M. Lauste has photographed many world wide celebrities, including the late King Edward the Seventh of England.

There are various types of monkeys. There is the ferocious African gorilla and the gentle orang outang from Borneo. The Saki of Brazil is an extremely rare monkey. The African baboon is large and savage.

Bernard McFadden, founder of the Physical Culture Magazine, demonstrates a few simple muscle builders in this issue of the magazine. Among these are deep breathing and certain kinds of exercises.

The magazine closes with a comic cartoon.
